

MEAM TRAINING & WORKFORCE DEVELOPMENT

Helping transform services and systems

MEAM works with local areas to improve responses for people experiencing multiple disadvantage. Our training offers a fresh perspective, blending 15 years of hands-on experience with theoretical knowledge and expertise.

We offer a range of comprehensive and customisable training and workforce development packages that upskill and develop effective mindsets, tools and approaches for transforming services and systems.

Available topics:

- The MEAM Approach: understanding multiple disadvantage as a systemic issue
- Coproduction and power
- Trauma informed systems
- Strengths-based systems
- Systems thinking
- Systems leadership programme

Our training provides:

- Ambitious but practical approach that speaks to a real world context
- Regularly updated material that reflects live concerns
- Online learning platform and support with peer reflection

We can also work with you to develop fully customised programmes that respond to your local system's requirements and learning needs

"It has challenged my thinking around my approach and about the changes we need to make within the system"

Foundation training participant

"I have gained a wealth of useful tools and frameworks that I can apply to different projects."

Systems Leadership programme participant

We're always happy to discuss your learning needs, big or small!
Contact training@meam.org.uk for prices and more information